Fuller's London Pride [H]
A landmark pub on a prominent corner site, reopened in autumn 2010 under new ownership and more recently offering Caribbean cuisine. A listed former coaching inn from around the 1760s, a part at the back dates from the 16th century and two windows on the top floor are filled in as a result of the old window tax. Formerly the Kings Head, it was run by cricketer Burn Bullock and his wife until he died in 1954 and was renamed in his honour on her retirement in 1975.

Fuller’s London Pride; Greene King Old Speckled Hen; Wells Bombardier [H]
Large community pub, the only one within a wide residential area, opposite church and assembly hall. The pub was reopened and renamed late August 2011 after refurbishment. Large, welcoming, J-shaped bar with several distinct carpeted areas leading to one with polished floorboards equipped with darts and pool. Several well placed TV screens throughout, including the garden, for sports; Sky in 3D (on two screens) and HD, ESPN, etc. Food 12 - 9:30pm daily. Accompanied children admitted until 8pm and baby changing facilities available. Darts tournament Wednesday evening and music quiz Thursday evening. Large garden but only plastic glasses allowed outside. Dogs only allowed in the garden. 40 seat meeting/function room available for free booking. Possible guest beer in the future. Originally the Beverley, named after the nearby brook. Lower Morden Lane is famous for the competitive excess of residents’ external Christmas decorations. 163 bus route from Morden, Wimbledon and Raynes Park. Also 293 and 413 bus routes from Morden all to ‘the Beverley’ stop.

For the latest news on the Campaign for Morden Tavern see their Facebook Page: https://www.facebook.com/MordenTavern?sk=wall. Alternatively, contact David Smith: usadasmith@hotmail.com. The Campaign for Morden Tavern to reopen has been mounted by local residents, ward councillors and CAMRA SW London Branch since it transpired that Merton Council had not yet sold the freehold to developers Reef Estates to whom Enterprise had sold their lease in 2009. Some 40 social events in the function rooms due to take place before the end of December 2010 had to be cancelled when it was suddenly closed: the building had been admirably serving the purpose for which it was originally designed and as intended by the then Council, whose own brief was that the community should have easily-accessible and multi-functional social spaces within easy reach to serve their communal needs. Locally listed by Merton’s chief executive in December 2010, it is the work of important inter-war pub architect, Sir Harry Redfern, the surviving seven of whose 14 pubs for Carlisle under the State Management System are recognised by statutory listing. The Campaign for the Morden Tavern would like to hear directly from other groups who had placed bids with AG&G for the lease at the time of its sale to Reef Estates. A first planning application for replacement of the pub site with high density flats was rejected in 2010 given the strength of opposing representations but a second application, 11/P0815 now incorporating the pub building but with changes of use to include at most a lock-up bar by way of replacement, is currently available for consultation.

Adnams Bitter; Sambrook's Junction, Wandle [H]
This privately owned 'public house & dining rooms' successfully avoids the identikit feel of many gastropubs, with red, green and cream décor complemented by modern art posters. Friendly, approachable and enthusiastic staff and a youthful clientele make for a relaxed and enjoyable atmosphere. Cask ale is served in 'jugs', guest beer changes weekly and an exciting range of keg and bottled beers and ciders is a bonus. You can usually get a taste of something before you buy, and draft beer is also available in ' thirds', to help sampling. TV sports are silent but the staff are happy to put the volume on if most people want it (especially for the rugby). well as winning the 2006 Wandsworth Business Award for best pub, café or restaurant. The oldest pub in Putney, dating from 1826, a cozy, family-run, community local reopened in 2005 after some time in purely domestic use by the owner whose purchase previously saved it from redevelopment. Now modestly refurbished. A real fire, tasteful background music, shonky halfpenny and bar skittles, and televised sports - big screen for special events but strictly a Sky-free zone - make this a pub for everybody. Flagstones now replace the astroturf outside. Holds frequent beer festivals: see

The White Lion was once a bustling venue that lost its way and was eventually closed down. The pub reopened in September 2009 as a live music venue and bar run by Music4Children, a charity dedicated to bringing sunshine into the lives of children worldwide. The pub is the base from where they plan and run most of their fundraising events. Real Ale was reintroduced in early 2012 after an absence of several years. Note: as only one handpump is in use Real Ale is not always available.

Ongoing work to improve and refurbish this building has seen the transformation of the bar and the garden along with the creation of a workshop space that is now in use. Every gig at the White Lion raises money for Music4Children - ranging from Open Mic nights, comedy, acoustic, rock nights, jam sessions, burlesque, cabaret and more. In May 2012 Music4Children broke the record for the World's Highest Gig [www.worldshighestgig.com/] for the second time. They performed at 6476m above sea level on Mera Peak, Nepal. Their previous record was set in 2005 at 5545m above sea level on Kala Patthar, Nepal, but this effort had been beaten in 2007 by a group of Germans in Bolivia. These events, along with many other music gigs, festivals and extreme fundraisers have raised enough money to build an orphanage in Dhulikhel, Nepal, which will eventually house 56 orphans affected by Nepal's civil war. The venue also has a backpackers' hostel upstairs with 27 rooms sleeping 1 - 6 people. Was White Lion (Hobgoblin) for a while. The White Lion can be found on Facebook, Twitter, Myspace and YouTube.

Friendly little bar and French restaurant, tucked away in the huge, haunting neo-Gothic, now Grade II listed landmark originally constructed as an orphanage for the daughters of servicemen killed in the Crimea. It was later used as a military hospital and, in WWII, an internment screening centre for foreign asylum seekers. Rudolph Hess was one such guest. Saturdays tend to be booked well ahead for weddings and other parties using the impressive Grand Hall. Beers typically from Ballards, Shepherd Neame and now Downton. Holds regular Beer Festivals. Enterprise Inns Unfortunately this pub closed on Sunday 18th September 2011. This 150 year old pub, modified and extended in recent years, packs plenty of seating into the spaces around the compact bar. It is renowned for its commitment to real ale. Guest beers often come from microbreweries and regularly include milds. Lunches are served 12-2.30 weekdays and 12-5 at weekends, evening meals 6-9 Tue-Thu. The brewery in question burned down in 1889 ... and was replaced by a fire station. Despite its profitability, its popularity with the entire local community and its delicious home cooked food, Enterprise told the lessee in December 2010 that they intend to convert this historic pub into a lock-up bar, replacing the kitchen and the tenants' accommodation upstairs with two separate flats. It is to be hoped that planning and licensing safeguards may be strong enough to prevent such offensive changes, to which customers are urged to make the strongest possible protests. Many local residents registered their reasoned opposition to an application that would deprive the Village of this delightful, historic pub and set a very bad precedent for many others like it. Planning permission was perversely granted by Merton Planning Committee on 14 April 2011 [read the minutes - Item 6] for conversion of the upstairs kitchen and staff accommodation to self contained flats, allowing Enterprise potentially to render the pub non-viable in pursuit of alternative prospects. The leaseholder may meanwhile be taking Enterprise to court over their refusal to renew his tenancy. Saturday and Sunday lunches (with a plan to extend to weekdays). The guest beer changes monthly. Mentioned in 1617 as last coaching stop into London and a centre for training volunteer soldiers in the Napoleonic wars, the Dog & Fox has been a Young's pub since 1834. Rebuilt in 1869 and now impressively remodelled and non-smoking throughout, it comprises a spacious, busy main bar for over 21s connected to family friendly seating areas mainly for diners, with attentive table service, and outdoor patios each end. Hop Back
Hop Back GFB, Entire Stout, Summer Lightning; Seasonal or guest beer [H]
Weekly seasonal beer or guest beer from family or small breweries. Hop Back’s only tied house in London (since 1994; Taylor Walker had previously run it down). An attractive two-bar 1950s brick building built to replace original demolished during the war. Large tables encourage conversation among customers. Beer Club on Wednesday when cask beers are discounted between 6pm and 9pm. Quiz night Tuesday. Dartboard. A beer festival is held over a weekend in September or early October. The Sultan was a finalist in the SW London CAMRA Pub of the Year 2010. In 2004 received Time Out’s Eating and Drinking Best Pub award. It is also a past winner of the CAMRA London Regional Pub of the Year award and has also been voted CAMRA South West London Branch Pub of the Year on a number of occasions.

Guest Beers (up to five); Pilgrim Thru’penny Hop (house beer) [H]
Guests change constantly and are often from small breweries such as Dark Star (Hophead is a regular), Downton and Sharps. Also a changing selection of milds during May - RAIB: Range varies. Won the SW London CAMRA Pub of the Year (2009) an award it also won in 2007 as well as being the 2008 Winner of the CAMRA London Regional Pub of the Year award. The Traf is a small friendly one-bar street corner house with two distinct areas. Much Nelson memorabilia and a real fire. The main part of the pub dates from 1860s with the extension from 1906. Historically it had the nickname of the ‘Threepenny Hop’ as it was said that men would occasionally hop over the fence from the now disused Merton Abbey railway line for a threepenny pint. Good value themed food night usually second Thursday of the month (see website www.thetraf.com for details). Quiz nights as advertised and TV has both Sky Sports and ESPN in HD. Trafalgar Day on 21st October is enthusiastically commemorated. Runs a darts team and cricket team, which raises money for the local hospital and schools. The ‘garden’ is a small seating area.

There has been a pub here on Clapham Common since 1665, although the current large, rambling and cavernous building dates mostly from the 18th and 19th centuries. Several distinct drinking areas with modern, restrained décor, including a wood-panelled back room, the dome room, the separate restaurant, ample patio and garden space and no TV sports, make this hotel particularly welcoming, popular with a youngish clientele. All day food. Sunday evening quiz.
